Cancer division

A key characteristic of cancer cells is the division of the nuclei in a process called mitosis. Unlike normal cells, cancer cells divide uncontrollably and in time work to create blood vessels that feed and supply them with additional oxygen, glucose, and hormones. In fighting against cancer, it is important to reduce the rate at which cells divide, cut off the supply of food and oxygen.

Years of working with cancer and fighting to reduce internal inflammation, has lead us to formulate a variety of supplements effective at slowing mutated cell division, and reduce the supply of food and oxygen to cancer cells.
